University College to Administer Bachelor of University Studies

Lubbock, TX - Effective November 1, 2010, the Bachelor of University Studies (BUS), formerly administered by the Office of the Provost, is offered by University College. The BUS is a welcome addition to the college's offerings which include the Bachelor of General Studies (BGS) and several wind energy programs. In addition to being offered on campus, the University College plans to offer the BUS online and at multiple locations throughout Texas that include Waco, Abilene, and the Hill Country beginning in Spring 2011.

The BUS is a unique degree program that allows students to choose three areas of concentration rather than the traditional major and minor. Students will work with a member of the University College Advising Team to determine the combination of concentration areas best suited to individual academic or career goals. Dependent upon the areas of concentration chosen, students will earn either a bachelor of arts or a bachelor of science.

The BUS is not a one-size-fits-all degree program. Areas of concentration and the coursework used to build them are as dynamic and versatile as our students' futures. BUS students are given the opportunity to build a program of study without restrictions by selecting areas of concentration from any of Texas Tech's academic colleges. The choice is up to the individual; with the BUS, students can become whatever they want.

The University takes pride in providing educational opportunities to Texans statewide, and the adaptable nature of the BUS makes it a perfect fit for individuals with a variety of goals. In addition, application of transfer credits to the BUS is easy; it is an ideal choice no matter where you are in life or where your life is located.
